

Westpay Leads the Way on Accessibility – Launches C20, the First Payment Terminal to Fully Support EU 2025 Requirements

Westpay AB ("Westpay"), a Nordic leader in secure payment solutions, today announces full compliance with the European Accessibility Act (EAA)—ahead of the 28 June 2025 deadline—and the launch of the first payment terminal on the market designed specifically to meet the new standards.

In a market facing rapid regulatory shifts, Westpay once again leads the way with solutions that are not just compliant – but ready. The newly introduced C20 payment terminal is the first of its kind to be fully aligned with EU's new requirements for ICT accessibility.

"This isn't just about ticking a box. It's about designing payments for everyone—and setting a new standard for what accessibility should mean in our industry," says Sten Karlsson, CEO of Westpay.

The C20 payment terminal is built from the ground up with inclusive design in mind, offering features such as tactile keypads, audio guidance via headphone jack, an auto-adjusting screen for optimal readability, and large, intuitive buttons. Accessibility is no longer optional. With Westpay, it's built in.

This milestone is part of Westpay's broader mission to lead the market with secure, flexible, and scalable solutions that are ready for both today's needs and tomorrow's regulations.

By making smart payments even more accessible, Westpay continues to lead the way in shaping the future of commerce. When merchants choose Westpay, they choose independence, resilience, and readiness.

It also further strengthens the company's SaaS-driven model, offering recurring value through future-proof payment solutions.

Secure. Swedish. Ready.
