PRESS RELEASE: Qflow welcomes Mätspecialisten and strengthens its offering in surveying

Qflow welcomes Mätspecialisten i Ale AB as part of Qflow Group. Mätspecialisten is a specialised surveying consultancy in Gothenburg with strong expertise in surveying and production support for building and civil engineering projects. The company will become part of the group company MEXL, thereby strengthening MEXL's offering in surveying. The acquisition broadens the group's surveying expertise and creates a strong foundation for continued growth in western Sweden.

We are delighted to welcome Mätspecialisten to Qflow. Henrik, Stefan and Marcus have built a highly skilled team with a strong reputation in western Sweden – reflected not least in the fact that virtually all of their customers come back. Mätspecialisten is an excellent fit for the group and complements our existing surveying expertise. Together, we can offer our customers specialist surveying expertise throughout the entire project lifecycle, from design to production, while giving the team better conditions to keep growing.
— Emile Hamon, COO, Qflow Group

Mätspecialisten is a surveying consultancy with offices in Gothenburg. Its services include excavation surveying, setting out of foundations, walls and installations, machine control, earthworks management, design and project management, and the company works with modern surveying technology. Its assignments mainly involve civil engineering projects and larger building projects such as housing, schools, swimming facilities and industrial premises. Its customers are primarily building and groundwork contractors, and the vast majority of assignments come from returning customers.

For a long time, Mätspecialisten has had more assignments than we could take on. We wanted to grow, but administration held us back. When we came into contact with MEXL, which aims to become Sweden's best employer, we immediately understood that this was the path we should take. We reached out to Qflow, which also saw the value for all parties: Mätspecialisten, MEXL and Qflow. The collaboration was under way even before the agreement was finalised, and now that we have signed, further collaborations are getting started. We look forward to what lies ahead!
— Henrik Brycke, CEO, Mätspecialisten
