Flat invests 10 MSEK in the AI company Pieces

Flat Capital AB (publ) ("Flat") invests approx. 10 MSEK in the AI company Pieces (the "Company") in connection with the company's latest capital raising. Pieces is an AI tool for developers with the goal of giving the user's computer its own memory by capturing, structuring and linking all relevant work context, such as code, documents and chats, to build and manage both real-time and long-term memory. Among the company's prominent investors is Drive Capital, a US VC fund run by Chris Olsen, former partner at Sequoia.

Since its founding in 2020 by CEO Tsavo Knott, Mack Myers, and Mark Widman, Pieces has targeted developers of all levels who want to increase productivity and automatically capture important context in their work.
