
Redeye Initiates Coverage of Ferroamp

Redeye initiates coverage of Ferroamp, a greentech company offering a modular hardware and software platform for smart energy control in buildings. After two challenging years, the company is strengthening its position through improved margins, lower costs, and a materially reduced breakeven level. New partnerships with Aira and Elvy validate Ferroamp's premium technology and create high-volume growth opportunities. Our DCF analysis shows a wide but attractive fair value range, supported by long-term electrification and rising demand for energy optimisation.
