

Huddlestock announce Modern Finance Nation as new IaaS customer in Germany

Huddlestock Fintech AS ("Huddlestock" or the "Company"), a leading investment technology and services provider, has signed an Investment-as-a-Service ("IaaS") agreement with Modern Finance Nation GmbH ("MFN"), a Frankfurt-based financial services company developing an innovative model for financing larger private investments. The contract follows the stock exchange announcement released on 17 November 2025. Revenue from the contract is expected in the second half 2026.

"This agreement demonstrates the continued trust placed in Huddlestock's regulatory infrastructure and IaaS platform," said Leif Arnold Thomas, CEO of Huddlestock. "Supporting innovative financial models such as MFN's securities-based solution is consistent with our strategy to expand our services and strengthen our position in continental Europe to enable digital investment offerings for our clients."

MFN will operate as a contractually bound broker under the supervision of Huddlestock and intends to offer consumers an innovative financial product that enables them to save for attractive returns on their purchase and hedge against potential interest rate increases in relation to borrowing planned for the purchase. According to the agreement, both ETFs and interest rate options will be brokered under Huddlestock's liability umbrella.

The parties have also signed a distribution agreement, granting Huddlestock the right to offer MFN's model to third-party platforms to provide the products to their clients. This arrangement creates potential new revenue streams through broader distribution of MFN's solutions. Huddlestock will receive an annual service fee, with revenues expected to grow alongside MFN's client base.

Supporting strategic growth priorities in Continental Europe

Following a transformative restructuring of its business in the first half of 2025, Huddlestock is focused on growth in continental Europe through its asset-light European IaaS platform. Through this agreement with MFN, Huddlestock is delivering on its stated goals of pursuing new partnerships for the European IaaS platform: expanding its European presence, delivering innovative asset solutions, and positioning itself for long-term growth.
