

INVISIO receives SEK 170 million order from a US Defense Department organization

INVISIO has received an order worth approximately SEK 170 million for Racal Acoustics branded communication and hearing protection solutions. The customer is a branch of the United States Department of Defense (DoD). Most of the deliveries will take place during 2024.

The order, which follows lengthy and rigorous product testing against military standards and requirements, reinforces INVISIO's position as the DoD's high-noise headset provider.

The systems, comprising Racal Acoustics RA5001 RAPTOR and RA4000 Magna™ high-noise headsets, will be used in combat vehicles.

The RA4000 Magna™ digital headset is Racal Acoustics' most recently developed product. It offers market-leading hearing protection, communication capability and situational awareness. The RA4000 Magna™ has modular, customizable and upgradeable features and accessories that make it possible to meet specific customer requirements while also prolonging product life.

The battle-proven, lightweight RA5001 Raptor headset delivers a combination of passive and active noise reduction (ANR) for excellent speech intelligibility and hearing protection, all within a slim profile compatible with helmets.

Lars Højgård Hansen, INVISIO CEO, said: "This is another impressive victory for Racal Acoustics branded solutions. There is no doubt that these solutions are market-leading in extremely noisy vehicle environments. This order also clearly exemplifies the increased activity level we are now observing in the market for heavy military vehicles and in general."
