

Quickbit launches its consumer offering in the Netherlands – continues its geographical expansion

Today Quickbit launches its consumer offering consisting of Quickbit App, Quickbit Card and Earn Wallet in the Netherlands, making it available also to Dutch consumers.

During the summer, Quickbit's registration in the Netherlands was approved and today, Quickbit's consumer offering is launched on the Dutch market. Netherlands becomes the fourth market for Quickbit's crypto-related services for consumers, besides Sweden, Norway and Finland. This means that it is now possible for Dutch consumers to buy, store, exchange, send, receive and sell cryptocurrency in Quickbit App. They will also be able to use the debit card Quickbit Card everywhere where VISA is accepted, including payments online, in physical stores and withdrawals in ATMs.

Quickbit's Earn Wallet will also be launched, which allows all Dutch users of the Quickbit App to lend cryptocurrency and in return earn interest via a third party. Initially, as for the other markets, Bitcoin will be the first cryptocurrency to be launched for earning interest in Earn Wallet.

"Last summer we received our registration in the Netherlands and we have been preparing for the launch of our consumer offering there. With this launch, we are taking the next important step in our geographical expansion and entering our fourth market, which is our first non-Nordic market. We will rapidly continue to develop our offer of crypto-related services to simplify the use of crypto in the everyday life of even more people", says Anders Jonson, COO and acting CEO in Quickbit.
