Acconeer receives ISO certification for quality and environmental management system

Acconeer has successfully achieved the certification of the Quality and Environmental Management Systems under the ISO Standards 9001:2015 and 14001:2015 for development and sales of semiconductors, modules and software.

Lars Lindell, CEO of Acconeer, comments: "We are very proud of this success, and it opens up for new business as it is a strong requirement from many large companies in our customer base globally. The certification proves the competence, efficiency and good practices of Acconeer and its staff members, confirming that our efforts and commitment to provide products with reliable quality and sustainable environmental impact are paying off."

ISO 9001:2015 and ISO 14001:2015 are globally recognized quality and environment management standards developed and published by the International Organization for Standardization (ISO). The standards provide a model for companies of all types and sizes to use in building effective quality and environment management systems.
