

New Head of Sales North America in Precise Biometrics

We have today appointed Jeff Scott as our new Head of Sales North America.

Jeff will replace our current North America Sales responsible Michael Harris with effect as of today. Jeff has a strong background within government and enterprise sales in the US as well as internationally.

We expect to hire more sales resources in the US in the near future to further support and strengthen our North America sales operations.

The changes furthermore reflect the fact that the US is the largest market for Tactivo™ sales, and we therefore consider relocating the function Global Head of Tactivo Sales to the US later this year.
