Azelio's CEO Jonas Eklind awarded Mission Innovation Champion at a ceremony in Vancouver

Azelio's CEO Jonas Eklind was Sweden's chosen representative at the award ceremony of the Mission Innovation's fourth annual Ministerial gathering in Vancouver on May 27th, bringing together ministers, business leaders and innovators. At the ceremony Jonas Eklind was awarded Mission Innovation Champion together with awardees, each representing a member country within Mission Innovation.

Mission Innovation was launched at the Paris Climate Conference in 2015 as a global initiative of 22 countries and the European Commission, on behalf of the European Union, seeking to dramatically accelerate global clean energy innovation and make clean energy widely affordable and reliable.

The awarded Mission Innovation Champions are individuals with a track record of progressing creative new ideas that can drive the pace and scale of the clean energy revolution. Innovators who are developing novel ways of making energy cleaner, cheaper, and more reliable and using it more efficiently.

About Azelio

Azelio is a public Swedish company, specializing in Stirling-based energy solutions with high-efficiency and modular concentrated solar power (CSP) with thermal energy storage (TES), for sustainable electricity production when and where it is needed. The technology is revolutionary for its unique ability to store thermal energy for production of electricity at nominal effect for 13h, to a low cost. The company has about 90 employees, headquartered in Gothenburg with production in Uddevalla and development center in Gothenburg and Åmål, as well as international presence in China, Spain and Morocco. Since the start in 2008, the company has invested over one billion SEK in technical development. In June 2018, the company changed its name from Cleanergy to Azelio and in December 2018 the company was listed on Nasdaq Stockholm First North. FNCA Sweden AB, +46(0)8-528 00 399, info@fnca.se, is Certified Adviser.
