Boule Diagnostics wins strategic tender

Boule Diagnostics AB has won the tender to supply hematology instruments to the Västra Götaland Region in Sweden. The tender is for around 40 of the new Swelab Alfa Plus generation instruments and includes service, consumables and spare parts. Installation of the instruments is set to start in quarter two, 2017.

“That we have won yet another public tender on the tough Swedish market is an undoubted triumph. This follows a similar successful tender to supply Östergötland County Council. The fact that we are able to win such tenders in the face of intense international competition is further proof that our products meet exacting quality requirements, which will be of strategic importance in future procurement processes,” Ernst Westman, CEO and Group President, Boule Diagnostics, says.
